

JOHN

Yes, I'm sure it was hard on the kids, but I wonder about Jerry and Evelyn.

CAROL

It was hard on them too.

JOHN

How do you know?

CAROL

I just do. It's got to be hard to be married to someone for a while, then have to get used to someone else. I don't think I'd be able to do that. Oh, and don't get me started on dating again!

JOHN

Yeah, that would be tough. I mean, when we dated, a hamburger and a night out necking meant getting to first base. Now first base is dinner delivered to your doorstep as an appetizer to hopping in the sack together.

CAROL

Is that what happens when they say, "swipe right"?

JOHN

Heck if I know.

CAROL

I gotta' get out of these clothes.

She goes out of the room. John sits, takes off his shoes.

JOHN

I still think there's a difference between first and second marriages.

CAROL (O.S.)

Like what?

JOHN

Well, for one, you know how to avoid first marriage mistakes.

CAROL (O.S.)

Like what?

JOHN

I don't know...almost anything. Toilet seats left up, toothpaste uncapped...they used to get a lot of attention. There's the always popular Mother-in-law jokes. Lord knows, your mother was a pill!

Carol pokes her head in the room.

CAROL

She was not! She was just protective.

JOHN

So are pit bulls.
